

MORGAN AND ENGLISH BISHOP IN TRAIN CRASH

Financier, the Rev. Dr. Davidson and Other Guests Severely Shaken Up as Special Speeding to Washington to Meet President Roosevelt Hits Engine.

(Special to The Evening World.)

EAST BROOKFIELD, Mass., Sept. 23.—The special train in which R. Pierpont Morgan, of New York, his guests, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Davidson and two chaplains, the Rev. Hyla Holden and the Rev. J. Ellison, were travelling from Bar Harbor to Washington, where they were to be received and dined by President Roosevelt, was wrecked here to-day.

Mr. Morgan, the Archbishop and other members of the party were thrown from their seats and badly shaken up, but escaped serious injury. Others, however, did not fare so well. Several train hands were badly hurt, and G. I. Mellen, the engineer of the North Brookfield engine, was so badly cut about the head and body that he had to be taken to the hospital at once. One of his legs was broken, and he was badly scalded by the steam from the wrecked engines.

The train to which the Morgan cars were attached was a special. It was running at the rate of sixty miles an hour. A dense fog prevailed. An engine which had just brought a North Brookfield train to the junction was run out on the main track for switching duty just as the Morgan special thundered up to the village.

The collision was head on and made a crash that could be heard a mile away. Fortunately all the Morgan party were in Mr. Morgan's beautiful private car, the Colonia, one of the strongest cars ever built by the Pullman Company.

The engine of the special was badly damaged. The tender was reduced to scrap iron, but not before it had been telescoped into the buffet car, badly wrecking that car. The Morgan car Colonia was hardly injured.

POLICE SEEKING WOMAN IN BLACK

First Sable-Gowned Woman to Figure in McNally Murder Case Gives Alibi to Satisfaction of Police.

After disposing of one theory that a "Woman in Black" could explain the mysterious murder of Frank McNally, who was slain in his room above his North Oxford street saloon early Wednesday morning, the Brooklyn police have information of another woman, clad in the same sombre clothing, who was a frequent visitor to the apartment of the murdered man.

The story of the second, as also did the story of the first, "Woman in Black" comes from Michael Costello, who now resides at No. 23 Adelphi street. Before McNally was found slain in his room Costello and his wife lived in the same house. This second woman, Costello declared to the police, was tall and slim and always wore a heavy black veil when she called on Oxford street several times a week, always driving up in a cab that had every appearance of being a private tourney.

No Resemblance.—Costello insists that he has not confused the two women. He saw them both at separate times and there was not the slightest resemblance between the two.

The first "Woman in Black" was found to-day and examined by the police. She was a straight as a pole as did Tony Hanlon, the actress, who was detained as a witness to the murder, and who proved to the satisfaction of the police that she was in no way directly responsible for the crime.

Her identity was established after an all-night search by the police under the direction of Capt. Toole, of the Flushing avenue station. In an interview yesterday with Michael Costello, who was described in detail, as she was seen frequently entering the apartments and the saloon of McNally. Mrs. Costello was positive that she had called there many times.

Finances Would Find Murderer.—Miss Tony Hanlon, the actress, has been confined to her bed since she learned of the murder of her fiancé. She is in a very nervous condition and believes that she will never recover from the shock. If she dies she declares that she will do everything in her power to uncover the mystery and find her sweetheart's murderer. When seen at her home, No. 79 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, she said:

"If I don't die as a result of this great grief that has come to me I am going to see Captain Toole and beg him to use me as a detective. The murderer of my Frank must be found. I know nothing about detective work, but I'll get the captain to instruct me, and then I'll go out and look for Frank's slayer. Nobody can kill my dear one and get away."

McNally's Brother's Theory.—Owen J. McNally, the brother of the dead man, advanced a theory to-day that a somewhat at variance with the police deductions. He asserts that he does not believe that the crime was committed by any one who was with his brother in the apartments over the saloon.

From going over the ground he believed that McNally went to his room and lay down on the bed and went to sleep. While he slept some one who was with him in the room entered and shot him. McNally said to-day that if he saw any one with a brother's name to bed he would not have the money and watch under his pillow.

WOMAN IN BLACK LASHES A RIVAL

Exciting Episode Precedes Start from Fashionable Uptown Resort for Auto Ride—Whip Brings Blood from Fair Face.

A pretty young woman, with light complexion and dressed in a short tail-made gray skirt and jacket, with her large hat pulled down over her face by a gray veil, was stepping into an automobile in front of Patsy's Palace, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, this afternoon, followed by a man about forty years old, well groomed and happy in the prospect of a ride down the drive and through the park. As the woman in gray had her delicately booted foot on the step of the automobile a woman in a black tailor-made dress stepped between her and the man with the sharply spoken order, "Stand back!"

Before the woman in gray could recover from her surprise woman No. 2 slashed her face with a lash. The whip cut a deep gash, from which the blood flowed. The man interfered at this juncture, pushed back the angered woman and said:

"For God's sake, Clara, don't make a fool of yourself."

Onlookers Take Sides.—"Clara" was perfectly frantic and, being a large woman, showed fight. She attempted to swing her lash again at the other woman, but was prevented so doing by the man who grappled with her.

"You have made a fool of me long enough," said Clara, "and I'm not going to stand it. I'll horsewhip her yet." A crowd began to collect around the warring trio, some taking sides with the woman in gray, others with the stout one in black. It was generally believed that the least fair of the two was the wronged wife. The sympathies of the elderly went out to her. But there were many young men and women among the spectators who sided with the pretty young woman, whose face had been cut by the lash.

Promises to "Get Even."—Realizing that a scene more embarrassing than that which had been enacted would rapidly develop, the man hustled his companion into the automobile and drove off. As the machine started down One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street the woman in black stood on the sidewalk in the centre of the crowd vowing vengeance.

"Never mind who I am," she said. "That is my business. I'll even up matters yet."

She walked proudly off and took an Amsterdam avenue car bound south.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK.

Crash in Delaware.—DELMAR, Del., Sept. 23.—A north-bound passenger train on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad ran into a southbound freight at Bloxom, Va., demolishing both engines, killing Engineer S. J. Brown and his fireman, Francis Donovan, and the passenger train, and severely injuring Engineer Clark of the freight. The fireman of the freight escaped injury by jumping.

The accident, it is said, was due to the carelessness of an inexperienced brakeman, who threw the wrong switch.

COMMISSIONER MACK RESIGNS.—Jacob W. Mack, a member of the Board of Education, has sent his resignation to Mayor McClellan, to take effect immediately. His health is the reason he gives for his decision to leave the Board.

PROOF OF POLICEMEN'S NEGLECT STIRS M'ADOO TO ACTION

The East One Hundred and Fourth street station, was charged with forgetting that he was on reserve and going home to bed.

"Do you believe the three-platoon system is the proper system?" asked the Commissioner.

"Certainly, sir," answered the policeman.

"And you believe that reserve duty is necessary, and not a needless hardship?"

"I think it very important," was the reply.

"Well," said Commissioner Lindsay, "if you and the other members of the force don't so understand, pretty soon you won't have the three-platoon system. You have got to walk your posts and do your reserve duty to make the money that is paid you. If you men don't do first-class duty the three-platoon system will be taken away from you, either by present conditions or by the criticisms that are being directed toward the department that the men are not doing their duty."

NOT DODGING THE AUTO.

Policeman Stuart Dewitt, of the Alexander avenue station, admitted that he was found a block off post. He said he was directing an Italian who could not speak English to a Third avenue train.

"You are sure you were not dodging The Evening World automobile?"

"No, sir," answered the policeman. "I was protecting that man's life."

"Why was his life in danger up there?" queried the Commissioner.

"There had been a lot of assaults up around there," was the answer.

"If I'd let him roam around alone he might have been killed."

"That is a great excuse for a policeman to make," commented the Commissioner. "Three days' pay."

A charge was made by a roundsman that Policeman Charles W. Gorsuch, of the East Sixty-seventh street station, was seen coming out of a doorway on his post with the top buttons of his blouse unbuttoned after the roundsman had made a long search for him.

AGAIN THE EVENING WORLD.

"Are you one of these men The Evening World has been unable to find on post?" asked the Commissioner.

"No, sir," rejoined Gorsuch. "On the contrary, I can show you The Evening World that each of the three trips their automobile made through our precinct they found me on post."

His excuse for being missing on this particular occasion was not considered adequate and he was fined.

M'ADOO, ON THE DEFENSIVE, MAKES COMPARISON OF ARRESTS.

Commissioner of Police McAduo, placed on the defensive by The Evening World's proof that policemen do not protect the city by patrolling their beats properly in the early morning hours, issued the following statement to-day as to conditions between Aug. 1 and up to and including Sept. 13, as against the same time in the year 1903:

	In 1903.	In 1904.
Violent crimes reported from Aug. 1 to Sept. 13.....	1,479	972
Number of cases in which arrests have been made.....	747	401
Percentage of arrests.....	51	40
Total number of persons arrested.....	864	556
Total number of persons discharged.....	535	200
Percentage of persons discharged.....	63	36
Total number of convictions.....	263	90
Percentage of convictions.....	30	16
Total number of cases pending.....	66	286
Percentage of cases pending.....	7	48

The Commissioner said that the falling off in the number of convictions this year is explained by the large number of cases pending in the courts and with which, he claimed, the courts had said they were not yet ready to deal.

A roundsman of the East Fifty-first street station complained that he made a tour three times of the beat of William Kilduff, patrolman, and could not find him. Kilduff said he was investigating a mysterious cry for help in the early morning.

"If the roundsman, in three tours on foot, could not find you on your beat," said the Commissioner, "I don't see how The Evening World automobile could hope to find you. Three days' pay."

Although it has been reported in police circles of late that Commissioner McAduo was contemplating the abolishment of the three-platoon system unless he could get better results from patrolmen, he did not seem pleased when told to-day that the open threat to change the system had been made by Deputy Commissioner Lindsay. He denied that a change had been thought of.

"Mr. Lindsay," he remarked, "is a very bright young man. When did he get back from Saratoga?"

PUPILS MEET DEATH IN CRASH AT SCHOOL

Nine Killed, Six Others Fatally Hurt and Several Maimed for Life When Crowd Rushing Into Playhouse Drop to Cellar with Building Wreckage.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23.—Nine children lost their lives to-day while at play in the yard of the public school at Pleasant Ridge, about twenty miles north of here. They were carried down in the crash of a playhouse floor with a score of other pupils and crushed to death by the heavy timbers. At least six taken alive from the wreckage will die.

A dozen others will be maimed for life, their legs and arms being broken.

THE DEAD.

CARMEN CARD, aged nine.
FAUSTA CARD, aged eleven.
MARTHA BUHR, aged nine.
LILLIAN WITHIN, aged nine.
HAZEL CLOVER, aged nine.

The pupils had been just given recess and were crowding the playground, engaged in various games, when one class, dismissed later than the others, came running from the school.

The leader made straight for a playhouse in the rear of the grounds used in bad weather, and his companions following shouting, attracted the attention of another throng and all rushed pell mell into the building.

Those from the rear crowded the others and soon the place was densely packed, the children in their mirth stamping and shouting.

Suddenly the floor gave way in the centre and the crowd of children were carried down with the crumbling timbers to the cellar.

There was a sheer drop of at least six feet and those who were first to fall were crushed to death by the weight of the struggling mass over them.

The shrieks of the pupils brought the teachers, who found a score of children perished in the wreckage, while others were making efforts to escape.

Aid was summoned and the work of rescue began.

The work of rescue took some hours, so complete was the wreck of the place. When all had been taken out it was found that nine out of twenty-seven who had plunged into the cellar were dead and six others were dying. It was said the latter would not survive the day.

LAZY COFFEE.

Another Name for the "Stoopy" Sort.

Postum Coffee is not made like ordinary coffee, for it takes at least 25 minutes' cooking to bring out the heavy food value of Postum. It requires some effort for those things which are really worth while—making Postum requires a little care.

The grocer is in a position to hear of those lazy ones who will not take the trouble to make Postum correctly. "I am well acquainted indeed with Postum," says a grocer of Camden, N. J., "for I meet it not only at my breakfast table but I am also associated with it daily in my business."

"Coffee drinking used to affect my nerves and stomach, but since we have been using Postum in our family in place of coffee the bloated feeling after eating has disappeared, and my head is now clear and stomach and nerves all right. We all feel better in every way and find Postum just as satisfactory to our palates."

"I have met customers who complained that Postum was not good, but we always found this due to the fact that they tried to make it as they used to make coffee. Of course, we set them right by pointing out the reasons, telling them they must boil Postum 15 or 20 minutes after boiling commences, then they get fine, choice and delicious Postum. Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

PRISONER GOT OUT OF STATION

John Baptiste Walked Away from the West Thirty-seventh Street Prison, but Officers Didn't See Him.

John Baptiste, a waiter, living at No. 266 West Thirtieth street, walked out of the West Thirty-seventh street police station this afternoon. He had been waiting with five other prisoners to be taken to the West Side court to be arraigned on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Patrolman Scheffer arrested Baptiste at the corner of Ninth avenue and West Thirtieth street. With five prisoners he was brought out of the station-house cells to be housed into the patrol wagon and sent to court. Door-man John Bailey led the prisoners out. Sergeant Mulcahy was on the desk. When the other prisoners were put into the patrol wagon Baptiste could not be found.

Lola Hunter, Capt. Brodzinski, Mabel Simms and Melwood also ran.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs—Won by Felix Moseca, 10 to 1 and 5 to 1, first; Tom Rowe, 4 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Senian, 4 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time—1:14.3.

SUBPOENA FOR OSWALD MAUNE

District-Attorney Nieman Will Force Attendance at Inquest of Father of Lynch Girl's Former Fiance.

Coroner Wallace, of Freeport, declared to an Evening World reporter to-day that he will prove at the second inquest to be held on Oct. 11 to probe the death of "Martha Lamber," that she was not Margaret Lynch.

"From testimony my detectives have collected for me," said the Coroner, "and from contradictory statements made by members of the Lynch family and Oswald Maune I am convinced that the dead woman is not Margaret Lynch."

"When I hold the inquest I expect to be able to prove by abundant testimony of witnesses that the 'Martha Lamber' now buried in Greenfield Cemetery was not Margaret Lynch. Certain facts brought to my attention during the past few days which make me believe that a false identification has been made."

District-Attorney Nieman to-day said that he would not exhumate the body, as he was confident that Oswald Maune, who was named by the Lynch family as Margaret's betrayer, can solve the problem of identification.

It will not be long, he said, before he will issue a subpoena for Mr. Maune, "but I will issue a subpoena for him and do everything in my power to bring him to the inquest. I am certain that he has evidence in his possession that will satisfy the Coroner's jury as to who the girl 'Martha Lamber' is Margaret Lynch."

BIG SUMS TO BET ON ELECTION

Wagers in Wall Street of $5,000 and $10,000 on Roosevelt and $10,000 on Roosevelt Waiting for Takers by Parker's Backers.

The betting on the National and State elections this year promises to be unusually brisk. It is unprecedented for the men who bet big money to begin talking wagers as early as this in a Presidential year. Such bets as are made at this time are usually wagers made as the result of heated discussions which reach a point where money is the only argument left. But during the past few days, and especially to-day, there have been signs of big money in Wall street waiting to be covered, and there is a tendency to talk betting such as has never shown itself so early before.
